Citizens' group forms to fight tax increases

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

If members of Haliburton County Council think they've seen the last of the fallout from their 1991 budget, they're wrong.

A group of local citizens is hoping to succeed where four municipal councils failed and have the county review its spending estimates for the coming year.

The effort follows council's refusal to re-open the budget at the request of Stanhope, Minden, Dysart and Snowdon councils.

Organized by Minden resident Gary Kenney and Haliburton resident John Beachli, the 40 people have sponsored full-page ads in The Times and The Echo calling for no more taxes and no more tax increases.

The ads encourage people who support the campaign to contact Kenney or Beachli.

"Everytime some level of government imposes a new form of taxation, everyone instinctively reacts with a knot in the stomach but they swallow it back," Kenney said in an interview on Friday. "It's getting to the point where we can't swallow any more. The old moan has become a groan and the groan is becoming a scream."

So far, the focus of the campaign is directed at the county, where the levy increased by 35.7 per cent this year, but Kenney says the frustration applies to all levels of government.

"Every level of government seems to have a master plan that has very little to do with what people think," he said. "From Brian Mulroney to Carol Puffer, they all articulate very clearly where they want to go, but they've lost touch with what's happening on the street."

But Kenney says the intent of the message is not to attack county council, but rather to form a consensus among residents in order to convince the county to take a new approach to the budget.

"People are very aware that the county is the tail being wagged by the dog, either at Queen's Park or Ottawa," he said. "We're being forced into a situation where upper levels of government are using local elected officials as tax collectors."

Kenney says county council is mistaken in thinking it has no choice but accept provincially or federally mandated expenditures. "They have the chance to get the support of the ratepayers and fight

Housing proposal submitted

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Staanworth Non-Profit Housing Corporation has submitted its funding request to the province for a 36-unit supportive housing complex.

The $3.5 million project will accommodate up to 42 residents in one and two-bedroom apartments, require a staff of 10 people and will include medical, homemaker, attendant care and meal services.

The proposed site of the complex is a 3.5-acre lot on Parkside Crescent across from Staanworth Terrace. Last November, Minden council approved a conditional agreement to sell Staanworth the park property for $50,000.

The new building, which will be called Staanworth Manor, will provide accommodation for frail elderly and physically handicapped people who need the range of services that will be provided.

In its submission to the Ministry of Housing for funding, the corporation refers to two recent studies which demonstrate a need for supportive housing in Haliburton County.

The Community Directional Plan and the Municipal Housing Statement both outline the demand for housing with supportive care, given the county's large population of seniors and the need to enhance long-term care facilities.

The new site will be close to three existing senior housing buildings, with a combined population of almost 100 people. The services provided by the new building will allow these residents to "age in place", according to the submission.

If approved, Staanworth Manor will be the corporation's fourth project. In addition to the two existing Staanworth buildings, the corporation is also in the final design stage of a 22-unit townhouse project.

The deadline for applications to the Ministry of Housing's non-profit housing program is August, 1991.

Dominion Hotel being torn down and replaced with shopping mall

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden is going to lose one its oldest residents.

The Dominion Hotel is being torn down after almost a century on Main Street.

Owners Peter Mathwick and Bryan Jackson attended the most recent meeting of Minden council and presented a three-stage proposal to replace the Dominion with stores and apartments.

"I have no intention of staying in the hotel business," said Mathwick. "There's no money in it."

The first phase of the development will involve tearing down the single-storey addition on the side of the hotel, which now forms part of the existing lounge, and building a 2,500 square-foot retail outlet with apartments above.

In the second phase, the rest of the hotel will be demolished and a second building will be built with a 10-foot wide covered walkway between the two buildings.

The third phase will see an addition built on the phase-two building with store fronts opening on to the parking lot at the back.

Building official Tom Hubercheck says Mathwick and Jackson want the new buildings to have an old-fashioned appearance with gabled roofs.

Once the first phase of the development is completed, the property will be short about four parking spaces to comply with the municipal by-law. But that shortage will be rectified once phase two is complete.

The origins of the Dominion are a little vague, but the hotel dates back to the time when Minden was first surveyed.

The property was purchased from the McCracken family in 1908 by John Mortimer who ran the hotel until 1920. Since then the Dominion has seen a succession of owners until it was bought by Jackson and Mathwick in December 1989.

Originally the two men had planned to restore the building, but have now opted to replace the hotel with the retail units and apartments.

Council approved in principle the first phase of the project, allowing necessary leeway for the insufficient parking spaces.

Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry said the project looks good on paper and will be a credit to the town.

Before the project can proceed, Mathwick and Jackson must enter into a site plan agreement with the municipality and provide a letter of credit covering the cost of the work.

The drive to raise funds for extrication equipment for the Minden Fire Department received a major boost this past week as the Rotary Club of Minden added $5000.00 to the kitty. Club president Brian Adamson, right, presented Fire Chief Don Booth with the cheque. The target for the drive is $20,000.

Group wants budget reviewed and property taxes decreased it," he said. "They don't have to bend down and take it on the ear."

"If county council can take pride in its constituents for the stand we're taking, maybe they can look into their own budget and work with ratepayers to fight the province on the areas the county has no control over. It can be a positive community effort," he said.

"But if councillors dig their heels in and feel we're antagonizing them just for the sake of it, then they're missing the point."

Kenney says the campaign is not an effort to attack the integrity of anyone on county council, who, he says, face an unbelievable task of balancing the needs of the county with available revenue and demands from the province.

"But the bottom line is, they put their names on the ballot to represent the constituency. If we tell them we don't want more taxes, they should use our pressure to fight the province and not buckle under."

One of the areas Kenney says has to be addressed is the accepted practice of spending local tax dollars to attract provincial or federal grants, under the assumption that if we don't take advantage of the money, some other area will. Using this approach is falling into a "traditional upper-level government ambush," he says.

"When you're making a budget it's like a game of billiards," he said. "It's not the balls you go after that make the difference in the game, it's the balls you don't go after."

The next step won't be determined until a consensus is formed among the people who respond to the advertisements, says Kenney, but he rejects the notion that the movement is an attempt to start a tax revolt in the county.

"Traditionally, Haliburton County has been very supportive of upper levels of government and you're not going to find a raging tax revolution overwhelming the population," he said. "This is a determined effort to make sure our elected officials know, there's no way we can afford taxation increases above the normal inflationary rate."

Kenney says he and Beachli will meet next Wednesday to evaluate the level of support among the community and to find out from the people involved what the next step should be.

A student group plans to drive a strong message home that drinking and driving don't mix.

Ontario Students Against Impaired Driving (OSAID) will place a smashed car next to a sign in front of Haliburton high school to spread awareness for Arrive Alive, Drive Sober Week, which starts May 13.

The Haliburton County Board of Education supported the move at its last meeting.

Director of Education Stuart Baker said students should be commended for the project. "They certainly deserve all the support we can give them."

Baker reminded trustees that four memorial trees at the front of the high school are dedicated to students who lost their lives in a car accident.

Trustee Mary Anne Wilson noted that the Minden Rotary Club supplies a bus on school dance nights, "which seems a tremendous support in this direction."

A boat launch at South Davis Lake will be extended this summer if Lutterworth Township Council gets approval from the Ministry of Natural Resources.

At last Tuesday's meeting, council considered a request by South Davis Lake Cottagers' Association President Ted Thompson regarding possible improvement of the boat ramp at the north end of the lake.

"While the ramp itself is of excellent quality, its steep slope and the softness of the lake bottom make it very difficult or impossible to remove many boats from the lake," Thompson writes in his April 22 letter to Road Superintendent Kevin Hill.

Thompson asks if the ramp could be extended several feet into the lake.

Last summer, council received permission from the ministry for shoreline improvement, allowing the township to build a rock crib to extend the ramp.

But the work couldn't be completed at that time because of poor weather conditions.

Council will apply to the ministry again to complete the work this year.

CANTEL APPROVED AGENT

Council cites "lack of skill" in clerk's dismissal

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden's clerk-treasurer was fired because she is lacking in skill and could not work compatibly with members of council or other municipal staff, according to council.

In the minutes of the special April 19, council meeting when clerk Mary Mysyk was fired, four reasons for her dismissal are listed.

According to council, Mysyk:

"exhibited discontent with her employment position which has materially affected her ability to perform the duties of the position;

"demonstrated during her tenure that she is lacking in skill, competence and knowledge to adequately perform her duties;

"is unable to compatibly function with the Council of the Township and with other employees of the Township; and

"has failed to carry out/comply with lawful or reasonable instructions issued by council members (either individually or collectively) and has further demonstrated disrespect for said members."

In an interview on Sunday, Mysyk denied council's allegations. Although she will not comment directly on the firing because she is trying to reach a settlement with the township through her lawyer, Mysyk did say that she had no previous indication of council's dissatisfaction with her work.

"I never had anything in writing or verbally that I was doing something wrong," she said. "I had no reason to suspect they weren't happy with my work."

Mysyk was hired in September, 1987 by the previous municipal council which included present council members Bern Berry and Bob Sisson.

The decision to fire Mysyk, effective May 10, was approved by Berry, Sisson and Mike Maher. In a recorded vote, Lewis Stevens was the only councillor to vote against the dismissal.

Reeve Ray Moore has been absent from council following a heart attack and surgery in Florida.

Mysyk says her lawyer has sent a letter to council requesting a settlement. If no settlement is reached, Mysyk says she will file a lawsuit against the township.

Marine safety important

During the week of April 22 to 28, 1991, officers of the Minden Detachment investigated 73 general occurrences and five accidents, with one person injured.

Thefts Around the County

Drag Lake - JVC ghetto blaster; fishing rod & tackle; tools.

Drag Lake - Wall clock; plaque of Scotland; carving knives.

Blairhampton - Telephones; Sears reciprocating saw; Sears chop saw; Sears electric staple gun; Sears sander.

Little Hawk Lake - Black & Decker 3/8 drill; Black & Decker 7/4 saw; Black & Decker cordless drill; Challenger socket set; wrenches.

Crown Lake - 15' logging chain.

Impaired Drivers

Jeffrey Meiske, 31, of West Guilford is charged with impaired operation of a motor vehicle and operating a motor vehicle with over 80 mgs.

Sidney Woolley, 56, of Haliburton is charged with impaired operation of a motor vehicle, refuse alert, operated motor vehicle with over 80 mgs.

Correction

A recent press release report that Mark Hepplestone, 31, was wanted in connection with an assault. Mark Hepplestone, age 32, is not wanted, but in fact has been charged with two counts of assault level 1 and is scheduled to appear in Provincial Court, Minden, May 3, 1991.

Marine Safety

With spring comes the boats of summer, and the necessity to check the safety equipment, required by law but also to ensure a safe boating season. Minimum requirements for any vessel less than 5.5 metres in length are as follows (See "Special Craft" for exemptions):

- 2 paddles or oars with oar locks;
- bailing bucket, or bilge pump;
- mechanical sound signalling device;

Police briefs

and

- 1 approved life jacket, Personal Floatation Device or life saving cushion for each person on board.

If any vessel is used at night, some form of navigation lights as prescribed in the Collision Requirements of the Canada Shipping Act are required.

If any vessel is powered by a motor great than 750 kw or 10 h.p. (inclusive), then the vessel MUST be licenced, the licence numbers prominently displayed on both sides of the bow, in block characters at last 7.5 cm or 3 inches in height.

Applications for licenses must be made to Customs Canada, and are available at Minden O.P.P. during normal business hours. There is no fee involved in licencing.

Special Craft as defined in the Canada Shipping Act, are sail boards and Sea Doo-type vessels. In these cases, the operator and any passengers must have a qualified life jacket or Personal Floatation Device. Sea Doos must be licenced, and both must have some form of mechanical sound signalling device. A whistle tied to each life jacket or PFD is advisable.

The forgoing information, and much more information of value to boat operators, is available in book form, in the Safe Boating Guide published by the Canadian Coast Guard, and distributed by the Ontario Provincial Police and various outlets throughout the county.

If you have any questions pertaining to the Canada Shipping Act or Marine related law and safety, contact Provincial Constable M. Maybee of the O.P.P. office in Minden during normal business hours at 286-1431.

Students return to Victoria Street

Kindergarten students of Haliburton Village will be moved back to Victoria Street Public School in September of 1991.

Presently, the four Kindergarten classes are housed at the Lakeview School, which is part of the Norman A. Sisco Centre, the campus of Sir Sandford Fleming College.

This situation hasn't been considered ideal, because the Kindergarten students are separated from children in higher grades, and don't feel they are part of the school.

They also must spend a longer time on the school buses, which must stop-off at both locations.

But, with the addition of a $25,000 portable, Victoria Street will be able to accommodate the Kindergarten students in the next school year.

The move is possible because of a decrease in enrollment of the developmentally delayed class, which will be moved from Victoria Street to J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School.

Only one student will be in the developmentally delayed class next school year.

Both moves will decrease staff and accommodation rental costs by $73,200 per year. The savings will be less this year because of the cost of purchasing the portable.

Canada Goose (Branta canadensis)

With the awakening of spring, it is always a joy to see the northward migration of the Canada Goose wending its way to its traditional breeding grounds. The V-shaped flocks announce their arrival with their musical honking call. In its extensive geographic range, the sub-species differ greatly in size, weight, voice and colour. A black head and neck, with a white cheek patch, and a grey to dark brown body is typical. It is a grazer of sedges, grasses and other vegetation.

Examination exemption process will be under review next year

by Susan Grober

The process of exempting high school students from writing June exams will be reviewed for the next school year.

At present, any student who misses more than 15 days of school must write exams. A 66 per cent grade is also required before a student is exempted from writing an exam.

A Minden woman, whose son has missed 18 days this school year due to illness, has requested that the board review this process.

Although his grades are above average, her son must write exams at the end of the year, in accordance with the board policy.

At the last board meeting, some trustees sympathized that it doesn't seem fair for the student to write exams just because he was in hospital.

"Those absences were unavoidable," said Mary Anne Wilson. "The policy seems to deal with it quite harshly in this instance."

"I tend to agree with (the mother), but it's difficult to make changes mid-year," said Tim Casey. "Our hands are tied."

Superintendent of Education Dale Robinson said teachers don't necessarily use exams as punishment. To be exempt from "an exam is a privilege, not a right," he said.

Robinson stressed that the 15-day borderline represents three weeks of valuable time missed in the classroom. "We consider that to be a major proportionate of time, where the student has missed group work, class discussions, and other things."

Trustee Leroy Eager agreed, and said the policy shouldn't change. "I don't think it hurts the kids any to have to write exams."

Len Salvatori said the policy ensures that all students catch up on missed classes, including those who miss school for valid reasons.

"The intent was not to do something harmful when the policy was made," he said. "We should stand with the policy, and continue on."

Charges laid related to fires

Minden OPP have made an arrest in connection with several recent fires, including the one that destroyed the livestock barns at the fairgrounds.

The barns were destroyed in a fire on April 28 at about 7 a.m. Although the building itself is covered by municipal insurance, the Agricultural Society is not covered for the contents of the barns.

Lost in the fire were three new ticket booths, valued at about $400, and all of the equestrian jumps which were worth at least $2,000.

The charges also cover related incidents including a grass fire on Bobcaygeon Road north of the village; and a small fire at the Minden arena where damage was limited to a mat outside the door.

Charged is Andrea Bowman, of no fixed address.

Bowman was being held in custody pending the outcome of a bail hearing in Lindsay.

Bowman is also facing an unrelated charge of mischief after a number of vehicles were damaged at the OPP detachment on Highway 35.

Breakingpoint

It may be stating the obvious to say people don't like paying taxes. However, it is also true to say that most reasonable people don't mind paying their fair share. Most people realize that, having chosen to organize our society as we do, there are certain financial obligations which fall to those members who have the ability to support them. They may groan and complain, but most people, and Canadians in particular, are willing to make that contribution to maintain a quality of life which provides a minimum standard for everyone.

There is a point, however, when the demands of governments exceed the peoples' sense of reasonableness, obligation and responsibility. Judging by the ad which appears in this week's edition of The Times that line has been crossed.

We believe the people who have voiced their objections to the growing tax burden are not the kind to abandon those in our society who need help, or to deny the three levels of government the financial support they need to provide a reasonable level of service. On the other hand, when the tax burden reaches the point where individuals must work for more than six months each year just to satisfy the demands of all levels of government, when the small business owner realizes that an increasing load of taxes is being shifted onto her shoulders, when citizens believe there is little or no control on, or thought put into, the way our tax dollars are spent, then some form of action is called for.

Some simply cheat and do not pay their fair share, others leave and look for a more hospitable place to live and others raise their voices in protest in the sometimes vain hope that in fact the system does work and their protests will be heeded and acted upon.

It is obvious by the message in today's newspaper, and by talking to others in the street, that people are unwilling, and unable to accept a greater tax load. This is not a petty protest or short-term out-cry. We believe this is the start of a grass-roots effort that is shared by ratepayers across the province and country. It is not a message those who have been entrusted with the power to govern should take lightly.

"ENOUGH, ALREADY - GO HELP SOME OTHER POOR SUCKER!"

Canadians fall short on history of country

Okay, quick now: Sir John A. Macdonald. Sir John...A...Macdonald?

What's the "A" stand for?

No good? Alright. Name the Fenian assassin who greased D'Arcy McGee back in 1868.

Still batting zero? Try this: give me the date of the Battle of Queenston Heights.

How ya doing so far? Complete strikeout? Well, don't feel bad as you settle your pointy little head into that dunce cap with the big maple leaf on the front of it. You've got a lot of company. A veritable legion of Canucks are right now scratching their chins and smacking their foreheads over arcane morsels of Canadian historical trivia that managed to whistle right in one ear and out the other without so much as

by Arthur Black

richoceting off their cerebral cortexes.

A research company called Goldfarb Consultants recently quizzed 1,628 Canadians to see how much homegrown history they knew. Conclusion: not enough to put a bulge in the tobacco pouch of a coureur de bois, that's now much.

The Goldfarb survey revealed that four out of ten Canadians couldn't name the date of Confederation. The same percentage didn't know the name of our first Prime Minister--John, A., or Macdonald.

They didn't do much better on contemporary political poohbahs. Only forty percent of students who were polled could name the leader of the federal Liberal party (Jean Chretien, as I type)--and just a fraction over half the people could reel off the names of three Canadian prime ministers since World War II. (There have been nine counting Willie King. I looked it up.)

John Eagle, professor of history at the University of Alberta, has a blunt retort to the dismal findings of the Goldfarb survey. The professor says "so what?"

"I'm not big at pushing a lot of names and

Authors of Senior League are appreciated

Editor:

I think we should all give a big thank you to our volunteer ladies who live in Hyland Crest Senior Citizens' Home, for writing the column every week in your paper.

Mrs. Pearl Lyle who did a great job and wrote it for a few years, and now Winnie Barnum. Winnie is in her young eighties and you always see her with a pencil and paper going around getting information and always seeing that all the volunteers that give of their time so generously are thanked and mentioned in her column.

I look forward to reading your Senior League and I'm sure all the other people that get the paper do also.

Thank you for the great service you have taken over Winnie. You do a fantastic job.

systems hit the west coast about every five or six days then tracked across the continent and hit the Great Lakes area.

There was more than normal numbers of these systems and if you followed the pattern by TV or map in the daily paper, they were of different type, each about the same and more than normal frequency. With all the cloudy wet weather, the average temperature this April was a bit higher than last April.

May and June are tornado months - be prepared! Let's hope there's no need to worry.

Trivia does not put history into proper perspective dates," says Professor Eagle. "It's more important to know why Louis Riel was hanged than when and where."

To which I can only gasp "Amen!" and wonder with just the hint of sob in my throat, where Professor Eagle was when I needed him--which is to say, back about a thousand years ago when I was memorizing dates and terms of proclamations and developing megathrob migraines in CanHistory 101.

Are there any other High School History refugees out there who still have the terms of the Rush-Bagot Treaty rattling around in their heads? Does anybody else still wake up with the night sweats mumbling "The chief causes of the 1837 rebellion were--just a minute ma'am, it's on the tip of my tongue--were..."

I've got Red River Cartloads of historical bric a brac cluttering up the already overtaxed crannies of my mental attic. I remember the number of fur bales sent from Fort Chipewyan in 1828. I can recite the preamble to Lord Durham's report. I can even recall (God have mercy on my soul) an entire speech by Mackenzie King--not to mention the date on which he droned it.

All of which does me no earthly good at all, because these are mere deadheads of trivia in an unchartable swamp of forgetfulness. I have no clear idea what Mackenzie King was like, or whether Lord Durham had a big nose, or where, exactly, Fort Chipewyan actually was.

And that's Professor Eagle's point. What's the sense of recalling data bits if they don't relate to anything?

Maybe that's why the folks surveyed by Goldfarb did so poorly. It's not that they can't remember their history--just that they remember the useless stuff.

Could be worse. A recent American survey shows that an astonishing 45 percent of Americans polled believed the U.S. vice president was, not Dan Quayle but...Mister Rogers.

True, the folks surveyed were all American preschoolers, but what's that old saying about "Out of the mouths of babes?"

I know if I had to choose between Dan Quayle and Mister Rogers, America's VP would be remembered in history as the guy in the ratty-looking sweater.

Lutterworth allows contractor to use land-fill sites for local work

by Susan Grober

A considerate Snowdon handyman has earned the praise of Lutterworth councillors by asking permission to use the township's landfill sites.

"Odd-Job Man" William Petersen operates a seasonal handyman and lawn-care service from his home in Snowdon Township.

Last Tuesday, council considered his request for written permission to use the township's landfill sites when he's doing work in the area.

Petersen's handyman service includes removal of brush, pine needles, grass clippings, and some household garbage and construction material.

He serves most of Haliburton County, and is concerned over the current proposals of some township councils to restrict landfill site admittance only to taxpayers.

Petersen is concerned this policy means he must take all refuse he collects on the job to his local landfill site. "I am forced to burden the landfill sites of Snowdon Township with refuse picked up in (other areas)," wrote Petersen.

During Petersen's six-month season doing odd jobs, he disposes of a maximum of 50 half-ton pickup truck loads of refuse, which works out to 15 or 16 loads per landfill site.

He says about 95 per cent of the refuse "is of an organic origin, and causes no problem whatsoever in landfill sites."

Deputy-Reeve Jim McMahon was impressed with Petersen's consideration. "This is the first time I've seen anything in writing from a private contractor," he said. "I say it's okay, as long as the work is in our township."

"There's no way of monitoring it," said Councillor Lisa Mercer.

"Hopefully, if he's a businessman of any standards, he'll abide by it," said McMahon.

Councillor Maurice Boyd said Petersen does a lot of work in the township, particularly at Hunter Creek Estates.

Boyd also noted that the township has been considering the introduction of tipping fees at the landfill sites.

Council agreed to send Petersen a letter permitting him to use Lutterworth's landfills only for refuse he collects in the township.

The letter will also state that this permission may be reviewed because the township landfill policy is currently undergoing some revisions.

"Just say things will be changing and we don't know how it will affect him," said Mercer. "We know things are in the works right now, we just don't know where it'll end up."

However, there was still some concern the letter would set a precedent, forcing the township to provide other contractors with the same type of permission.

Councillor Bill Valentine said it only seemed fair.

"If he's working in Lutterworth, we can't do anything about it," said Valentine. "It looks like he's been taking (refuse) to the Snowdon dumps, and he's feeling a little guilty."

Valentine said there have been many problems in the past with contractors and residents from other areas using Lutterworth landfill sites without permission.

"So many from Cobocok to Cameron used to dump shingles at Little Gull before we had it locked," he said. "At least this guy has had the courtesy to ask and find out what's going on..."

"If any of us did work, we'd have to dump it here," said Valentine. "Why shouldn't he."

Life memberships given

Kinmount Legion members honoured at awards night

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

In an emotional ceremony, members of the Kinmount Legion recognized those members who have distinguished themselves with the level of dedication and serve they've given to the branch.

At the Royal Canadian Legion John McGrath Branch 441 awards ceremony on April 27, two Legion members and five members of the Ladies Auxiliary were presented with life memberships and retiring auxiliary president Olive Morgan was presented with a service medal.

Although Morgan has not been with the auxiliary long enough to qualify for a life membership, her comrades recommended her for the service medal in recognition of her efforts during her two-year term as president.

"During the past two years as president and leader, she accepted all tasks," said auxiliary member Mary Hartin. "She was not afraid of challenges. Her donations of time, food and money were second to none.

"We've had many great presidents in the past, and we were lucky to have you. Thank you," said Hartin as she presented Morgan with a bouquet of forget-me-nots.

Legion President Al Jopling also paid tribute to Morgan during a speech choked with emotion.

"I could not have had a better person on the other side, leading the ladies," he said. "I really appreciate all the work you've done for us over the last couple of years. Thank you love."

Life memberships were presented to Legion members John McMahon and Arthur Owens and to auxiliary members Kay Allen, Vivian Anderson, Mary Hartin, Lil Platt and Gladys Silver.

33 seat "bicycle" to be featured in fair parade

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Visitors to this August's Haliburton County Fair will be able to take advantage of a bus service to and from the fairgrounds - as long as they don't mind pedaling.

The Minden Agricultural Society has arranged to use a 33-seat, pedal-powered bus from the city of Hull, Quebec, during this year's fall fair.

The vehicle, known as a Velobus, will be part of the parade and then will be operated as a shuttle service from the village to the fairgrounds.

All money raised by the Velobus during the fair will be donated by the Agricultural Society to the Haliburton chapter of the Heart and Stroke Foundation.

Minden council has agreed to pay $250 towards the cost of transporting the Velobus to and from Hull.

Agricultural Society member Bess Cox was at the most recent meeting of council to request a license to operate the bus service during the fair, room to store the Velobus in the municipal garage and financial assistance to cover transportation costs.

She said the society has already committed itself to getting the Velobus to and from Hull, paid a $500 deposit for the vehicle and made a donation to the Quebec Heart and Stroke Foundation.

People will be able to buy a seat on the Velobus during the parade for $5 each and the $150 generated will be donated to the Haliburton Heart and Stroke Foundation. During the rest of the fair, passengers using the Velobus shuttle service will be able to make a donation.

Councillor Mike Maher made the suggestion that council donate $250 to the project immediately and try and find another $250 during budget time to cover the entire cost of transportation.

"Two hundred and fifty dollars is not outrageous for the Heart and Stoke Foundations, or for the fair," said Maher. "Your request is modest compared to some others."

The County Fair will be held on August 16, 17 and 18.

Pedal power will be coming to Minden this August when this 33 seat "bus" powered by the passengers makes its appearance at the Haliburton County Fair. The vehicle is a creation of the Hull Heart and Stroke Foundation and while in this community will be used to help raise funds for the local organization.

CONVENIENTLY LOCATED AT SILVER EAGLE RESORT IN EAGLE LAKE

Helping Haliburtonians learn to read

A recent study shows many locals might require literacy training

by Susan Grober

The numbers are frightening.

A study conducted by Statistics Canada in 1989 suggests that 16 per cent of Canada's adults have reading skills too limited to allow them to deal with the majority of written material encountered in everyday life. An additional 22 per cent have reading and writing skills of a limited nature, and some of this group find everyday reading tasks too demanding.

But the percentage of illiterate persons in Haliburton County may be even higher.

"There's a need for literacy training here, and we have to provide it," says Barbara Nangle, co-ordinator of the Haliburton Highlands Literacy Program.

Since she was hired as co-ordinator of the program in January of 1990, Nangle has worked out of her small Haliburton office one day a week, matching clients with volunteer tutors, offering guidance, fielding phone calls, and providing reference materials.

And, with help from research consultant Cynthia Johnston, Nangle recently completed an extensive report assessing the need for literacy training in the county.

The program was started by the John Howard Society of Victoria-Haliburton, with funding from the Ministry of Education. It was the John Howard Society which applied for, and received, funding for the study from the federal Secretary of State.

In the highlands, 21 per cent of adults have less than Grade 9 education, which places them in one of the highest risk groups for having lower than functional literacy skills.

Literacy levels lower than average

The study estimates 1,919 people in the county may need literacy training.

This number was calculated using the Statistics Canada study's finding that 46 per cent of Canadians with incomes less than $10,000 per year have low reading and writing skills.

Of the 4,615 males in the county who are over the age of 15 and have some income, 1,615 earn less than $10,000. Using the 46 per cent guideline, there are 742 adult males who may need literacy training.

Of the 4,000 working females, 2,560 have incomes below $10,000, leaving an estimated 1,177 who may want literacy training if it were accessible.

Such low wages are prevalent because much of the work in Haliburton County is seasonal. Harsh winters limit construction activity to summer months. Tourism and recreation activity also drops off considerably in the winter.

"As these two industries often require lower skills and pay lower wages, employees without skills are limited to part-time or seasonal work opportunities," reads the study.

Those who can't read or write at a functional level are barred from entering retraining and skills upgrading courses, the study states.

"The cycle is endless: if you cannot read, you cannot go to school; if you do not go to school, you cannot get a better job; if you cannot get a better job, you and your family remain poor."

An upgrading of literacy skills could have a positive impact on the local economy by providing a more skilled labour force, opening new opportunities for industrial development.

"At the very least, it would offer an element of choice for those adults who wish to upgrade their literacy skills and cultivate employment choices," the study reads.

Identifying the issues

A major component of the overall study was a survey of local people, providing a real view of the problem of illiteracy in the county.

The first task was in developing the survey questionnaire. Nangle performed face-to-face interviews with 23 "expert informants" from a variety of area organizations to get a sense of local literacy issues.

These informants included representatives of: police, clergy, board of education, Children's Aid Society, Women's Safety Network, CHACE Place, CITC, Sir Sandford's job re-entry and job training programs, employment centre, association for the mentally retarded, Kinark Child and Family Services, probation services, and the county's social services department.

By November, 124 questionnaires were returned. More than 40 per cent of the total mailing list returned completed questionnaires, and all of the respondent groups were represented.

And the survey says...

In the last year, an overwhelming 82 per cent of the respondents said they've met at least one individual in Haliburton County who might benefit from literacy training. Forty-five per cent said they knew one to three people in need, 27 per cent knew four to eight people, and 12 per cent knew of nine or more.

One professional respondent indicated that, in the course of work, he/she identified more than 55 individuals who may require the services of a literacy program.

In total, this survey identifies 525 adults in the county who have problems reading or performing tasks which involve numbers.

A series of questions about this group determined more specific details about local people in need, although respondents were not asked to identify the individuals by name.

The survey data suggests that, of the total number, 124 are under the age of 25, 135 are between 26 and 40, 127 are between 40 and 55, and 139 are over 55.

The gender is not specified for 60 of those identified with a need for training. As for the rest, 302 are male and 163 are female.

From a list of possible communities, respondents were asked to indicate where the identified individuals are located in the county.

The results to this question determined that the distribution of persons requiring literacy training parallels the pattern of population distribution.

Out of 525 people, 28 per cent live in Haliburton Village, and 16 per cent live in Minden. Dorset, Wilberforce and Gooderham make up a total of 11 per cent of the people, while 24 per cent live in outlying rural areas. The rest were unspecified.

Haliburton Highlands Literacy Program Co-ordinator Barbara Nangle spent part of last year preparing an assessment for the county's need for training in words and numbers.

Of the individuals identified, less than 50 per cent have access to transportation, making it difficult for them to access literacy training services.

Only 174 are presently employed, 60 have steady seasonal employment, and the rest are either unemployed or receiving pensions.

In determining how long these people have lived in the county, the interview data suggests long term residents may be more likely to require literacy training than newcomers.

"The same source suggested that the long term residents may be less willing to take advantage of the service, and may require special coaxing," the report states.

History lesson

One part of the report required Nangle to describe her perceptions of the county and its residents.

In her notes, Nangle outlines how the history of Haliburton County has been shaped by the demand for her natural resources — from the days long ago when the market for furs, and then lumber, opened up the area to settlers, to today's demand of the area's beautiful landscape for recreation and amenity.

The following is a brief excerpt of Nangle's perceptions:

"The county was settled by rugged frontier families whose men spent many months deep in the forest at lumber camps, while the women and children learned to cope in the harsh Canadian Shield landscape of the Haliburton Highlands.

"As the lumber supply dwindled, the beauty and ruggedness of the landscape itself became the resource of value. Seasonal vacationers from the cities to the south bought lakeshore property and built summer retreats. As roads improved and cars became more commonplace, weekend travellers and tourists generally became the mainstay of the local economy.

"Most recently, urban retirees are moving to the countryside, finding Haliburton County has many amenities which they can afford. These newcomers are reasonably secure financially, and are able to purchase homes and amenities which are frequently not affordable for the local residents."

Nangle says this influx of people has brought new opportunities for commercial and construction employment. But a lack of skills available in the local labour force means yet another group of newcomers are competing for their jobs.

This competition is made worse for locals as the government sets higher standards for many job designations, requiring licenses and certifications for people such as carpenters, plumbers, chain saw operators, pesticide sprayers, and those who do lumber skidding.

"Local residents, many of whom have less than Grade 9 education, are now faced with upgrading programs and retraining opportunities for which they cannot qualify until they first upgrade their reading and numeracy skills," she writes.

Some can't cope with reading and writing

Nangle says the recent influx of tourists, retirees and businesses are changing the social and economic landscape of the region, making literacy training all the more important for those residents in need.

"We know these persons are out there," she writes. "It is difficult to identify them, and even more difficult to convince them to join the program. Every person deserves the opportunity to learn, and the program must be ready when they are."

Spreading the word

Nangle is battling a widespread problem through her one-day-a-week job co-ordinating the Haliburton Highlands Literacy Program. And there are many hurdles to overcome.

It's difficult to deliver service in an area with problems such as distance and isolation in its terrain and settlement patterns. And unstable, seasonal and low paying employment patterns result in low household incomes and chronic economic instability.

Therefore, the report makes three recommendations to make the Haliburton Highlands Literacy Program accessible to all county residents:

1) Funding must be maintained at a level which permits the co-ordinator to work well beyond six hours per week — the co-ordinator should be available in each community on a regular scheduled day each week or two;

2) The program must respond to the needs of learners in a wide range of age groups, and with a diverse set of training needs — time is required to develop a list of tutors with a wide range of skills, and to match tutors with learners to minimize travel costs for each; and

3) Intensive public education and awareness of the program is necessary, particularly to help employers in the region become more sensitive to the prevalence of low literacy skills among their employees, and to the benefits of encouraging those workers to obtain the training they need.

It's quite a challenge to encourage interest and spread the word about a literacy program to those who need help. Innovative modes of advertising must be developed because, after all, written ads aren't useful to potential learners who can't read.

"We've got to have more people interested in literacy," says Nangle, who has made several presentations about the program to service clubs, women's groups, and other organizations.

One of Nangle's goals is to conduct open houses, public meetings, and public speaking engagements on the program throughout the county, including the more remote centres.

Nangle has an advisory committee that she finds very supportive. But she feels the program needs roots in the community, with a pool of volunteers who can do jobs ranging from phone work and distributing bookmarks, to fundraising.

"I work six hours a week, and that's very limited time to do the things that need doing. Sometimes I feel like a butterfly going from flower to flower. The time has come for the program to grow and develop."

Of course, the program can't grow unless funding is increased. Even now, there is a shortage of resource materials, such as learners' workbooks. As the program expands, more supplies will be required.

Although Nangle would like more government funding for the program, she realizes there is a shortage of money at present.

"We need to start funding in our own community," she says. "The government is not going to fund it forever."

For those who may worry about seeking training, Nangle says the program is completely confidential. Clients come from all walks of life, from retired persons to business owners.

And Nangle always needs more people with time and expertise who are willing to train these clients, for at least one hour a week. "I need a bank of tutors to draw from."

With 24 client-tutor matches at present, Nangle says the program may only be reaching one per cent of the need in Haliburton County.

"There's obviously a lot more that needs doing," she says. "I need to get out and talk to more people. But at least there's that one per cent that's getting help."

Anyone interested in the literacy program can contact the office at 457-3430. If Nangle is not at the office, an answering machine will accept your call. Those who would like to read the needs assessment can borrow a copy from the literacy office, which is at the back of the Haliburton Employment Centre in Haliburton.

Badminton teams qualify for All-Ontario

Four senior badminton players from Haliburton high school recently qualified for the All-Ontario Championships in Sault Ste. Marie.

The players earned gold medals at the COSSA (central Ontario) championships to qualify. Karen Cooper and Melanie Duchene won for ladies' doubles, and Chris Bradford and John Vuksic won for men's doubles.

They competed in the All-Ontario Championships from Wednesday, May 1 to Saturday, May 4.

Danielle LaRue and

Jason Morissette won the COSSA bronze medal for mixed doubles.

The junior badminton players also competed at COSSA, and brought home the gold in all three categories. The players are: Jenna Stutt and Jen Bradford in ladies' doubles;

Derek Wilson and Chris Greenfield in men's doubles; and Stacey Vick and Corby Kent in mixed doubles.

Junior players don't compete at the All-Ontario Championships.

Both the local junior and senior badminton players had an outstanding season.

Coached by Glen Scully, the junior players won the Kawartha West competition. Thirteen of 16 players qualified for the Kawartha finals, which they won.

The Kawartha finals qualified nine of these players for the COSSA Championship.

The senior players, coached by Bob Penfold, won the Kawartha West. And 10 out of 16 players qualified for the Kawartha finals.

The seniors came in second in the Kawartha finals, which was won by Cobourg East, and six local players qualified for the COSSA Championships.

Haliburton Highlands Secondary School's junior badminton players did well this season, winning gold medals for ladies', men's and mixed doubles at the Central Ontario Championships.

Four senior badminton players of Haliburton Highlands Secondary School went on to the All-Ontario Championships in Sault Ste. Marie last week, competing in the ladies' and men's doubles categories.

Highlands has 2000 new trees thanks to youngsters

by Susan Grober

Armed with pails and shovels, more than 50 beavers, cubs, boys scouts and girl guides trekked across an expansive Minden property on Saturday to plant 2,000 trees.

The annual Trees For Canada project improves the local area by establishing windbreaks, reducing soil erosion, and providing food and habitat for wildlife.

The trees were planted at different sites at Peter Terry's property on Beaver Road.

This year, two million trees will be planted across the country by members of Scouts Canada.

Funds raised through the projects have been used to help further scouting in our community, and some of the money is used to support international scout programs in third world countries.

The children who plant trees raise money by obtaining pledges from sponsors.

Celebrate National Forest Week

25TH ANNIVERSARY OF WOODLANDS IMPROVEMENT ACT

Twenty-five years ago the Ontario government began a forest program to help small landowners improve their woodlots and so enhance the environmental and economic health of the province. Since 1966, the Woodlands Improvement Act (WIA) Agreement program has proven to be a successful partnership with more than 13,000 landowners participating in cooperative management agreements with the Ministry of Natural Resources.

The WIA Agreement program allows the Ministry of Natural Resources to provide technical and financial assistance to private landowners to establish forest plantations or to improve existing woodlots. Under this cooperative arrangement, the landowner participates in the management program and agrees to maintain and protect the woodlot or plantation for 15 years. It is one of several programs designed to encourage good forest management on private lands.

Fifteen per cent of the productive forest land in Ontario, some 5.9 million hectares, is privately owned. "Privately owned forest lands contribute significantly to the quality of life in Ontario as they are mostly located close to high population areas," said Alec Denys, manager of MNR's private land forestry program.

Privately owned forests provide many benefits to the residents of Ontario including beautiful wooded landscapes, wildlife habitat, clean air and water, jobs and forest products. "Everyone has a stake in ensuring these private woodlands remain healthy and continue to provide these important benefits," said Denys. He added that "It's been an outstanding success with more than 28 million trees planted annually and 260,000 hectares of woodland under agreement".

In Minden District, 28,161 hectares of private land are currently under agreement with MNR. "This year we have scheduled 30,100 trees to be planted and 1,385 hectares to be improved on WIA Agreement lands," said Reg Raby, Minden's Acting District Manager.

The Minden District Office offers a number of other private land forestry services to private landowners. Staff provide landowners with advice on conservation, wildlife habitat, woodlot management, reforestation, harvesting and product marketing.

In addition, private landowners with more than two hectares can purchase tree nursery seedlings below cost to encourage tree establishment. And the Managed Forest Tax Rebate program provides for municipal tax rebates for eligible managed forest land as an incentive for good management.

Budget offers little help to tourism

A quick reading of the Toronto Star the morning after the NDP's first budget contained little aid or comfort to the tourism industry, locally or provincially.

Conservative estimates put tourism spending down 10 per cent across the province last year. Not only are less people visiting Ontario, but more Ontario people are holidaying outside the province. Tourism is still Ontario's third largest industry with over $15.5 billion spent. It is also the single largest private-sector employer, generating the equivalent of 160,000 full-time jobs.

This budget tripled the provincial deficit. They are going to spend $10 billion

From the Chamber

by Shawn Hagerman

more than they hope to receive in revenues. When it came to the Ministry of Tourism, the basically froze the budget at last year's levels of $153 million. This, plus increased taxes on gas, liquor and tobacco, isn't good news for the tourism industry.

The Star quoted Bill Biggs, chairman of Tourism Ontario Inc., as saying: "This budget totally ignores the plight of hundreds of small, family-owned tourism and hospitality businesses."

Even unions are unhappy.

The president of the 10,000-member Local 75 of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees' Association, Jean Guy Belanger, was quoted as saying: "We keep putting our prices up and chasing the Americans away."

Our local representative sitting on the government side must, since our riding is heavily dependent on tourism, begin to address these concerns both in caucus and legislature. I am sure those in the Chamber who are tourist operators would appreciate an opportunity to meet with our MPP and discuss their concerns.

I head the final irony the other day. It seems the United States government is considering adopting a tourist promotion slogan called "USA, Yours to Discover." Sound Familiar? Right! It used to be Ontario's slogan, "Ontario, Yours to Discover." In fact, if you go out and take a look at your license plate, it is probably right below the number.

Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery. Uncle Sam probably got the idea from a frustrated ad executive trapped in a Canadian traffic jam in a Buffalo factory outlet mall.

Perhaps, with Swiftian humour, I may put forward a modest proposal for the Ministry of Tourism's new promotion logo; "Ontario, Discover What's Left". Who knows, it might catch on.

NO MORE TAXES!

Please Help us Say No!

If you feel strongly about the tax increases constantly imposed on us and if you see these tax increases as a threat to your freedom, your standard of living, your business viability or your dreams to have and hold a home, cottage or business then join us.

We feel any tax increases above the rate of inflation damaging and unacceptable. For the last five years we let taxes rise by more than twice the rate of inflation and this was our mistake, for now governments want more.

Our elected representatives at all levels have a responsibility to represent us, the taxpayers. We ask that they take this position seriously.

From the local perspective we believe that the industries and businesses that are already established here and employing people (most of which are tourist related) will not be able to withstand increases beyond the rate of inflation. We also believe that cottagers who now support the local tax base should not be asked for more than the rate of inflation. We need their stabilizing support in our community.

As for enticing new businesses:

- Haliburton County is a great place to live and do business but we must regain control of our taxes. They go up 12% to 20% per year - with no signs of stabilizing.

To All Taxpayers, Home owners, Land owners, Business owners - Join us to tell every level of Government

NO MORE TAXES AND NO MORE INCREASES

We have the power. Let's use it.

Dear John.....thank you

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

After almost three decades of serving his community, John Eakins received a heart-felt "thank you" from hundreds of friends and admirers.

More than 350 people turned out at the Victory Park Armoury in Lindsay to pay tribute to Eakins who, during his political career, served as Mayor of Lindsay and held two cabinet positions in the Ontario government.

Messages of appreciation and gratitude came from three political parties, all levels of government and from the other side of the world.

Attending the reception were more than a dozen Liberal MPPs, both past and present, who served with Eakins during his 15 years as Victoria-Haliburton's representative at Queen's Park, including Robert Nixon, interim leader of the Liberals.

Also in attendance were: Mike Harris, leader of the provincial Conservative Party; Dennis Drainville, Victoria-Haliburton's MPP in the NDP government; and Bill Scott, the riding's Conservative MP.

In his tribute to Eakins, Nixon said the two met in 1971 during Eakins' first attempt at provincial politics. Nixon, who was leader of the Liberal party at the time, said Eakins, ran as a Liberal even though residents of Victoria-Haliburton had been "born, baptised and raised Tory."

Eakins lost in 1971 but was elected to Queen's Park after the 1975 campaign, during Premier Davis' Conservative dynasty. Nixon said Eakins was an excellent member of the opposition.

"It's the greatest honour to be here, and a pleasure to be associated with John," said Nixon. Noting the diversity of political parties represented at the reception, Nixon said people in all levels of politics get involved in order to serve their communities.

He said Eakins provided an example of dedication and service, without "crawling over everyone else" for political gain.

"On behalf of the Liberals, I appreciate everything he's done for the party," said Nixon.

Not only did Eakins earn the gratitude of his party and his community, he also made his mark as far away as Japan. During his time on Lindsay Town Council, Eakins was instrumental in having the town twinned with the Japanese city of Nayoro.

Catherine Miller, the current chairman of the twinning committee, read a letter from the Mayor of Nayoro in which he said that Eakins' dedication, "had reached across the Pacific to Nayoro."

After 23 years of being twinned with Lindsay, Nayoro's mayor said it is "hard to express what we have learned," and he appreciated the development of international feelings among Nayoro's citizens. "Keep guiding as you have always done," was his message to Eakins.

The reception was advertised as a non-political event, and all those who paid tribute to Eakins focused on his accomplishments as an individual, not as a Liberal.

"He's a very important man in the history of this county and riding," said Dennis Drainville, Victoria-Haliburton's NDP member in Queen's Park. Drainville said Eakins has been helpful to him ever since the NDP's surprise victory in last September's elections. "The advice he has given me has been good advice," he said. "He's been there to give me direction when I needed direction."

"We live in a place where people care, and John is an example of that society," said Drainville. "He's an example of what it means to be a neighbour and a friend."

Drainville then presented Eakins with a tee-shirt, in NDP orange, that reads 'John Eakins MPP Emeritus.'

Eakins also received praise from his former boss David Peterson, who served as the Premier of Ontario during Eakins' four years in Cabinet.

Although he could not attend the reception, Peterson sent a letter that said Eakins deserves every honour bestowed upon him. "Your sense of fair play serves as a model for all those in public life," said the letter.

The most personal tribute came from former Liberal MPP Vince Kerrio. Kerrio and Eakins were both elected to the provincial legislature as part of the "Class of '75", served in Cabinet together, and both retired last summer.

Kerrio spoke fondly of the friendship which developed between the two men during their time in office together, a friendship which still endures. He spoke of visits to Eakins' Somerville cottage and trying to teach Eakins to fish. "He doesn't make a good fisherman," said Kerrio. "He's too honest."

"One of the nice things about politics is the kind of people you meet along the way," said Kerrio. He said his friendship with Eakins has been the biggest benefit of his political career.

Eakins was also recognized for his contributions to the Town of Lindsay and the County of Victoria during his time in municipal politics.

On behalf of the Town, councillor

Former Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins was the guest of honour April 26 in Lindsay as fellow party members, representatives of other political parties in the riding and the general public gathered to pay tribute to his many years of service.

Marg Gilligan and Kay Hick presented Eakins with a certificate naming him as an honorary, lifetime citizen of Lindsay.

Bobcaygeon Reeve Frank Poole announced that a waterfront improvement project in his village will be named the John Eakins Waterway in recognition of Eakins waterfront development efforts while he was minister of tourism.

Poole said Eakins set the "highest standard for those who chose to serve our communities.

"You provided leadership and a vital linkage with Queen's Park," said Poole.

Somerville Reeve Bryce Young, who is also the Warden of Victoria County, said it was hard to try and express appreciation for all Eakins has done for the area. He said the county courthouse, for which Eakins helped to secure restoration funds, is lasting evidence of Eakins' accomplishments. "It's a beautiful record of our history and you helped us do it," he said to Eakins.

(more on page 30)

Riding pays tribute to John Eakins

Young, with help from councillor Clayton Cameron, presented Eakins with a covered patio swing for his home in Somerville.

When Eakins finally took the stage, he said he was overwhelmed by the number of people in attendance. He said some people were there to see if he really has retired. "It's the largest nomination meeting I've ever had," he kidded.

He said he was delighted to see so many of his former colleagues from the legislature.

One of the reasons he entered provincial politics was because of a personal commitment to Nixon. Nixon spoke at his first nomination meeting in 1971 and at his last in 1987 and Eakins said he requested Nixon's presence at the 1987 meeting because he felt he would retire after that term.

The two other reasons why he sought the Liberal nomination in Victoria-Haliburton were because; "I didn't know any better and no one else wanted it," he said.

Looking back on his career, Eakins said it was a real honour to be elected Mayor of Lindsay, the town where he grew up. "My success as Mayor was directly related to the quality of people I had the pleasure to serve," he said. "It's a tremendous honour to be made an honourary citizen of my home town.

"Thank you ladies and gentleman for giving me the opportunity to serve," he said.

He thanked Peterson for appointing him to the provincial cabinet, a distinction enjoyed by only two other members from Victoria-Haliburton.

He also thanked his family, and especially his late wife Iris, for their support and "being a big part of the team."

People in public life are judge on whether or not the communities they serve are "left a little better than they found them," said. That being true, those in attendance would agree that Eakins has done very well indeed and he was treated to a chorus of For He's a Jolly Good Fellow as he left the stage.

Interim Liberal Leader in the province, Bob Nixon, right, was on hand to wish John Eakins well. As the two exchange greetings they frame one of the many other provincial politicians on hand to salute Eakins, Vince Kerrio.

Victoria-Haliburton MPP Dennis Drainville was among the many to bring greetings during the evening honouring retiring MPP John Eakins. He presented the former representative with a T-shirt announcing his retired status.

Life of crime an ideal tonic

The excitement and thrill of crossing into the daring world of criminal activity is the premise around which swirls the cast of Breath of Spring, a spritely comedy and the latest production of Highlands Little Theatre. The light-hearted British farce is directed by Christine Lynd, who has done a great job in staging the play.

Five aging seniors discover that the sedate role which society expects of them, and which they willingly play, can be dramatically changed, by becoming involved in a little larceny. The plan to escape the "tea time of their lives" begins innocently enough when the maid, played by Lisa Carr, steal a fur wrap from an adjacent apartment. Shocked and fearful that the young girl will be found out, charged and sent back to the prison from which her mistress, Dame Beatrice Appleby, played by Anne Creelman, recently rescued her, the lady of the house along with three boarders and a friend devise a plan to return the fur to the apartment from which it was taken.

The creation of the plan by Bee, along with her friend, Lady Miller, played by Eleanor Cooper, and three boarders Nanette Perry, played by Brenda Ellis, Brigadier Albert Rayne, played by Bruce Amson and Elizabeth Hatfield, played by Bonnie Fitzgerald is the catalyst which allows the group there can be more to their lives. It works so well, the group see a "future" and certainly more excitement in lifting furs from the rich, fencing the stolen goods, and distributing the ill-gotten gains among the poor. And so the group embarks on a series of successful capers and discover a side of life most never thought existed.

This premise provide a number of humorous turns as the senior stealers plan their next robbery and attempt to elude the detection of the maid, who has warned them about the consequences of a life of crime. The play provides an excellent situation for numerous humorous encounters, including the final sequence which sees Detective Sergeant Pape of Scotland Yard, played by Jim Andrews, and his constable assistant, played by Roger Scheffee arrive at the apartment to investigate the theft of a fur coat. Through some adroit manoeuvring, clever lines and funny pratfalls the revived seniors are able to.....but that would be giving away the ending.

Full marks for an excellent set. The crew, which involved most of the cast as well as Kirk Creelman and John Lubowitz, along with some professional help from Cordell Interiors, created the look and ambience of an English drawing room.

It was pleasant to see the HLT recognizing the needs of their patrons by offering cushions at the door for those who know they will not be able to make it through a performance on the less than soft chairs.

Breath of Spring will be presented again this weekend, May 10 and 11, at the HHSS auditorium. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Pat Campbell hopes many will contribute to a fund to raise money for the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children. Along with this donation box display at Campbell's Garden Centre and Flower Shop, money will be raised for the hospital through a door-to-door canvass where carnations will be sold for $1.50.

Flowers will help fund services at Sick Kids

by Susan Grober

Campbell's Garden Centre and Flower Shop is giving you the opportunity to be nice to your mother, and help a sick child in the bargain.

The Minden business is holding a Carnation for Kids day this Saturday, May 11, just in time for Mother's Day.

Children will sell carnations for $1.50 each in a door-to-door canvass in the village, with proceeds going to the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children.

The carnations can also be purchased directly from the store on the Saturday.

For each carnation sold, $1 will go directly to help children at the hospital. The rest of the money will just cover the cost of the flowers, says storeowner Pat Campbell. The flower shop won't make any money out of the deal.

"It seems appropriate for Mother's Day, because mothers and children go together," Campbell says of the fundraising drive.

Money for the hospital fund is also being collected in a donation box, which is part of a display Campbell has set up in her store.

Campbell's is a member of the Florists' Transworld Delivery (FTD) Association, which has joined the Children's Miracle Network Telethon as a national sponsor.

The telethon is a fundraising appeal to raise money for children's hospitals throughout the United States and Canada.

But all funds raised locally will go straight to the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children.

Produced live from Disneyland, the telethon will air for 21 hours beginning Saturday, June 1. Last year, over $89 million was raised.

The shop is also taking part in FTD's national promotion in conjunction with Mother's Day. Every time you send the FTD Blossoms & Bows Bouquet, or any FTD bouquet to your mother, a donation will be made to the children's hospital.

This promotion allows you to take part in the fundraising drive, even if your mother doesn't live in the area. Through FTD's local and international network, with over 25,000 independent members, Campbell's can provide delivery of such bouquets almost anywhere in the world.

Mother's Day is Sunday, May 12.

SENCO 40th ANNIVERSARY

Stepping out for the third world

by Willis McNeilly

Help A Village Effort's eighth annual Walk For Water is off and walking.

Saturday, June 1 at 9 a.m., Norm Wallace and May Hicks will officially start this year's Walk For Water from the Band Shell in Haliburton Village.

May and Norm are the Walk Marshalls for 1991. A longer and a shorter walk are organized for this year. The 16 km walk encircles Lake Kashagawigamog and the 9 km walk offers a boat ride across the lake from the 9 km point to the finish line. Entertainment and refreshments will be featured at the finish area and draws will be held for some fine prizes.

This year, six check points will be operated and at each point walkers will fill out a ballot for the draws at the finish line.

Pledge sheets are available at Video City at Halco Plaza and at Larry's Video in Minden and at both Re/Max offices in Haliburton Village and in Minden. Pledge money is to be turned in at Highland Business Services in Haliburton (corner of Pine and Highland, brown brick house), or the Re/Max office in Minden.

May Hicks, of Lochlin, and Norm Wallace, of Highway 35, north of Minden, have walked five and seven years respectively and have raised enough money to pay for the drilling of 20 wells in the third world. Every dollar raised is matched by the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA).

HAVE has drilled over 100 wells in Africa and India and is supplying fresh, safe water to many thousands of villagers in the poorest in the world.

The Walk For Water is one of HAVE's main fund-raising efforts and young and old alike are urged to pick up a pledge sheet, collect pledges and enjoy the walk. The need for safe drinking water is urgent in remote areas of Africa and India and the HAVE people have become very efficient at the installation of water wells.

All drilling is supervised and the on-going performances of the wells are monitored. HAVE members have created a solid network of contacts in countries where HAVE wells have been installed and efficiency and performance is guaranteed. Every dollar raised is matched by C.I.D.A. and every dollar goes to help provide fresh, safe water in these poor areas.

In Haliburton county we have vast amounts of fresh water. "We take it for granted," says Mildred Hill of Lochlin, an active HAVE member. "This is our chance to provide safe drinking water to those with none. All it takes is a well and for this all it takes is for people to walk for pledges," says Mildred.

Keith Hill, Mildred's husband, says that, "HAVE Committee members work very hard year round," and he urges everyone to come out and take part in this fund day and help our effort. If you cannot walk for water yourself, phone 457-3684 or 286-4700 and make a pledge for Norm Wallace or May Hicks, or sponsor someone you know.

Norm Wallace and May Hicks are HAVE's 1991 Walk For Water grand Marshalls. The walk is scheduled for June 1. May, 79, of Lochlin, and Norm, 86, of Highway 35 north of Minden, have raised $12,000 in the past for water wells in India and Africa. With matching dollars from CIDA, the money they have raised has paid for 20 wells. The walk this year starts from the band shell in Haliburton at 9 a.m. If you wish to sponsor Norm or May, call 457-3684.

Hi Kids!
Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters.

Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list. It's as easy as that. Have fun!

Access fund available by Donna K.M. Pacey, Executive Director, Haliburton County Home Support Services.

Did you know that there is a joint program of the Ontario Office for Disabled Persons and the Ontario Office for Senior Citizens' Affairs called "The Access Fund"? It is meant to be used to increase physical access by disabled persons and senior citizens to existing community meeting rooms and public facilities. Grants of up to $50,000 are available for approved renovations. To be eligible for this program, organizations must be private, non-profit and must have been incorporated for at least one year prior to applying for an Access Fund grant. Also eligible are municipally-sponsored Elderly Persons centres and Disabled Persons' Centres. To find out if the project you have in mind is eligible or if you wish further information, please contact Mr. Douglas Maryer, Co-ordinator, Access Fund, Office For Disabled Persons at 1-800-387-4456, ext. 66. Haliburton County Senior Games recently held their official opening luncheon at Stanhope Fire-hall. The games will begin May 21 and will run until June 28 at various locations around the county. Registration forms for the Games are available at Haliburton County Home Support Services (across from Emmerson Lumber in the Drag River Municipal Building in Haliburton) and the Minden Information Centre in the Municipal Building in Minden. Registration closes May 13, 1991. For further information please call Sherron Sisson at (705) 457-2171.

Association represents lakefront property owners

At a meeting on April 24, 1991, a new ratepayers group named The Peterborough County Coalition of Lake Associations (PCCLA) was formed. Representing the 70 lake associations in Peterborough County and their membership of thousands of individual waterfront property owners, both permanent and seasonal, PCCLA's mandate of proactive involvement is to provide year-round monitoring of county events, issues and policies and to relay pertinent information to its member associations. PCCLA is firmly committed to forging new relationships within the county and to fostering positive communication and co-operation with all levels of government and with other ratepayers' groups to the end of making mutually beneficial contributions to the Peterborough County community. As funding committee member Craig Nicholson said: "With the Residents invited to anniversary celebration

April 17, the Hyland Crest residents were invited to the Centennial Anniversary of the Carnarvon United Church to attend a tea and fashion show. The volunteer bus drivers were busy so three cars were volunteered to take those who wished to go. Fred Kirkwood, Rose Smith and Linda Fry drove us. The members of the church searched among their old treasures and came up with fashions worn in the years 1900 to 1960.

As the guests came in they were conducted by a lady dressed in one of these fashions, to where they had different shaped and sized boxed decorated beautifully by the ladies, filled with sandwiches and squares for our tea. For a small donation we chose a box and then seated ourselves at tables set with linen, dishes and silver all from the period of the wearing apparel.

Mrs. Hamilton read a story of happenings in this area during 1900-1960. It

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

surely brought back memories for seniors. We enjoyed the afternoon very much. We thank the ladies heartily for they truly had some clever ideas and done a lot of very hard work to make the centennial tea such a success. Thank you Linda, Rose and Fred for making it possible for us to attend.

There was the regular tea party provided by the Haliburton United Church Ladies. The lovely tea was served by Mary Packard, Helen Archer, Letta Roberts, Marie Roberts and Lynn Thompson. It was nice to have these ladies with their delicious tea and a happy social hour. They have our sincere thanks.

In the evening we had bingo with 10 residents and three visitors. This is a welcome increase in attendance. We also had Daisy Downs, Nancy and Troy Briggs and Marg to call the bingo and we thank them enormously.

Friday, April 19, was Happy Hour. Everett Fairey played guitar and sang. Charley Hadley played mandolin and Lloyd Madill the violin. Everyone enjoyed their music, while Don and Ellen Holden, Mary Guillemine, Bonnie Fullan were volunteers and Linda Fry and Cindy Wright cared for the wants of the residents and we thank you all very much.

Sunday night chapel was taken by Reverend John Burgess. We were so glad to see him back again and looking much better. Alice Jones played for us and we thank both Reverend Burgess and Alice.

Monday, Evelyn Coleman held Bible Study. We studied about putting new material into old and new wine into old skin bottles. Glad to have you back and thank you Evelyn.

At 4 p.m. Rose Smith read to us from a new book we have begun.

The movies Monday evening were shown by Fern Donnelly and Pat Bradburn. They were "Kodiac (bear) Country in Yukon" and "A Long Day, Midnight Sun of the Eskimos".

Tuesday, with the help of volunteers, we played euchre and Scrabble in the auditorium. It's some time since we had an afternoon of cards. We thank the volunteers who helped us have a happy time.

The Curling Club seniors of Minden were here Thursday to bring our tea party and end of the month birthday cake. They also had three clowns from the Lions Club. Jim Hamilton, Lee Oster and Maurice Boyd to liven up the tea party. The only one having birthday was Dora Dawson. Wanda Carter, Nancy Cook, Ruth Bishop, Irene Fuhr, Ann Baker and Muriel Green provided the lovely lunch and Dora's beautiful cake. Thanks from the bottom of our hearts.

That evening we had bingo. Marg Prentice was the only one there to call, but she calls as though more were there, and we certainly thank her.

Friday's Happy Hour was today with Bill Payne, Eldon Deacon and George Smith providing the entertainment with singing, guitars and violins. The residents and relatives enjoyed the afternoon and thank Bill, George and Eldon very much. The volunteers who cared for everyone's wants were Don and Ellen Holden, Bonnie Fullan and Dorothy Milne, who has returned home from spending the winter in Florida.

A couple of weeks ago my sister May, her husband Roy Cameron, their daughter Jacqueline Yateman and her grand-daughter from Peterborough came to Haliburton to vision Wilda LaRue, just home from Phoenix, Arizona. They came here on their way home and had dinner with me.

I am sorry I had an error in my last column. It should have read Niagara instead of Orillia where the Cosmetic Co. is situated.

System must reflect value of the environment

Any form of government is a human creation that reflects the value and belief systems of a people. And like all human creations, no political system is perfect.

In times of stress and rapid change, as we are seeing from the Soviet Union to South Africa, governments require flexibility, imagination and leadership, and this becomes especially critical as the planet's biosphere undergoes unprecedented change.

Canada is a young country whose system of democracy is still in flux.

For example, it was only in the late '40s that aboriginal people and Asian-Canadians like my parents who were "born" here, were even allowed to vote.

More recently, patriation of the Constitution, aboriginal land claims and a drive for Quebec independence have created upheavals that are far from resolved as we struggle to redefine this country.

Nowadays, there is a pervasive public cynicism toward politics and politicians that is an expression of frustration over the apparent inability or unwillingness of politicians to act, and the often terribly slow response when they do.

But maybe government priorities and perspectives can't be congruent with the needs of the environment.

Even the best of people with the highest intentions, political priorities and government structures may prohibit adequate action on global

Reflections

by David Suzuki

ecological degradation.

To begin with, only "people" vote. There are no elected representatives of nonhuman life, the atmosphere, watersheds or ecosystems.

Politicians act on behalf of their constituents--the human beings who elect them.

So they can have a concern for the other life forms only as they impinge on human needs and demands.

That may not have mattered in the past, but now that we have acquired the capacity to wipe out entire ecosystems almost overnight, this "species chauvinism" blinds us to what we are doing to the rest of nature.

At the very least, all people must acquire an understanding of ecology and recognize that we remain embedded in and dependent on an intact natural world.

When I interviewed federal Environment Minister Robert de Cotret in November, he told me environmental matters could be handled the way he had operated while head of the Treasury Board.

But what is the worth of a pair of nesting birds, a watershed or an old growth forest? When evaluated like interest rates or the stock market, they will always fall before our priorities.

Our form of democracy allows a party which has garnered a minority of the votes to form a government and impose its program, as was the case with the free-trade agreement, when most people oppose it.

With no proportionate representation, the opposition must score points by opposing.

While he was prime minister, Pierre Trudeau once suggested this adversarial system might be flawed, but was greeted by suspicion that he intended to grab more power. Yet we urgently need a baseline of common ground that is beyond dispute, for example, the necessity for protection of clean air, water, soil, and biodiversity above all else.

Consensus is necessary to avoid "playing politics" with the fate of the planet.

Our faith in politicians is based on the leadership and vision of those elected to office.

Today, they must make decisions on issues ranging from soil degradation to toxic pollution, atmospheric change, deforestation, species extinction, environmental carcinogens and fusion power--issues that require a grasp of fundamental principles, concepts and terminology in science and technology.

Each of these obstacles can be overcome, but requires a radical shift in the prevailing social values, assumptions and beliefs that shape political perspectives.

House of Commons rules change

The House of Commons has just passed several changes to the rules under which it operates. The result will be a more productive Parliament.

Between elections, getting in touch with their Member of Parliament is a good way for citizens to give their opinion on various issues. However, when Parliament is sitting, Canadians living outside of central Canada are at a disadvantage, as their Members are often away for weeks at a time, or only occasionally home on weekends.

Report from Ottawa

With Bill Scott, MP

The new House of Commons timetable will allow Members to better balance their parliamentary and constituency obligations.

Instead of sitting an average of 155 days a year, the House will sit 134 days. Members of Parliament will sit more hours on average by extending sittings by one hour per day. In comparison, the Australian Parliament sits an average 66 days a year, the Japanese Parliament, 43 days a year.

In Canada, although they pass as many bills as the federal government, provincial legislatures sit far less often than their counterparts in Ottawa. The number of sitting days varies from 42 a year in New Brunswick to 98 a year in Manitoba.

The calendar change will give Members of Parliament more time to spend in their ridings. This is especially important for ridings located far from Ottawa, where the Member simply cannot return home for a two-day weekend. Members will be able to communicate more effectively and more often with their electorate, a service citizens now expect from their MPs. In real terms, MPs will now be able to spend a week per month in their ridings.

A major overhaul of the committee system will allow Members to increase their expertise, and to permit the government to consult more with MPs on policy development.

Bismarck said in the last century: "If you like laws and sausages, you should never watch either one being made."

In Canada, thanks to television, people see their laws being made. And recent indications prove that people are tired of bickering and endless debates which serve no purpose. There is a lot at stake here: Canadians' faith in their democratic institutions.

The rule changes are the result of a year of discussions and co-operation by the three parties' House leaders.

The reform reflects the government's intention to turn Parliament into a modern and efficient institution and to help Members get closer to their constituents.

Deadline passes

by Doreen Hawman

The April 30th deadline for filing your 1990 Income Tax Return has passed, but, it is not too late to file! There is no age limit for filing—you are required to file a tax return no matter how old you are.

When you file a return, you are also registering to receive a GST credit.

A single person with an income of less than $22,800 could be eligible for a Federal Sales Tax rebate of $140. A family with a net income not exceeding $23,600 could qualify for a credit of up to $280 and $70 for each dependant under 18 years of age.

Further information and assistance is available by contacting your nearest Information Centre.

In Haliburton, the office is located in the Drag River Municipal Building, Maple Ave., open Monday to Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or call 457-2733. If you reside in the Minden area, the centre, in the Anson, Hindon and Minden Municipal Building, is open Monday and Tuesday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or call 286-4100.

If you live outside the toll-free area, please call collect.

CARD OF THANKS

The Stinson family wish to express their very sincere appreciation to all of those who have been so kind and helpful to our dear mother, Stella Stinson, both over the last few years and following her recent passing. The staff and volunteers at Hyland Crest have been just marvellous, and a very special thanks goes out to Melinda for her care and thoughtfulness and to Gary and Mark while they were there and to Reverend John Burgess for his prayers and dedication of Sunday's Service. Thanks also to Dr. Thompson and the Third Floor nurses at St. Joseph's for making her comfortable and making things more bearable. To Gordon Monk for a lovely personalized service and to Elaine, Marg, Isobel, Audrey, Barb and Rosemary for all the food and the help back at the house, and to all those who expressed their sympathy with floral tributes, memorial donations, cards and phone calls and by their presence, we thank you for helping us through this difficult time. Your kindness shall not be forgotten.

Bob & Joan Stinson,
Ruth & Jack Max.

BIRTHS

Kevin and Cassaundra Barnhart are thrilled to announce the safe arrival of their new son born on April 15, 1991, at 10:06 p.m., weighing 9 lbs, 2 oz. Special thanks to Dr. Petrosoniak and to the nurses Ruth and Rhoda of the Lindsay Hospital Maternity Ward. Proud grandparents are Thomas & Renée Hubercheck and Bob & Sharon Barnhart.

JOSHUA CALVIN

IN MEMORIAM

JOHNSON - In loving memory of my husband, Doward C., who passed away May 7, 1979.

When evening draws the curtain down
And pins it with a star,
I remember when we use to watch
The evening star afar.

Forever remembered by wife
Hazel.
